In this issue of Sport History Review, we are introducing a new approach within the book review section. Typically, each issue has different reviews on several different books. In issue 54(1), we are piloting a forum section in which we have invited three authors to review the same book. This approach aims to bring different viewpoints and commentaries from scholars across the field.

In the first forum, Y. Andrew Hao, Alyssa Hirsch, and Alec Hurley review Peter J. Watson’s book, Football and Nation Building in Colombia (2010–2018): The Only Thing That Unites Us. We hope the three reviews will provide readers a chance to gain a comprehensive insight to this compelling book.
